

Airhead!

The diary of an incompetent air-con apprentice...

MONDAY

Nightmare weekend! Can hardly bare to write it down...

Went on Saturday to the 'gentleman's pub', The Tent & Trousers. I arrived to find my ex heart-throb Galina on stage, displaying herself around a pole... She was much admired and doubtless stirred many other throbbings too. I lost romantic interest in her since realising she wasn't exactly a dancer from Poland and was living with a Russian millionaire. But after coming off-stage she sashayed over and asked me for a drink (I lost €20 then somehow) and we got chatting.

Also at the bar was Max's pal, Carlos, the dodgy car salesman (aka 'Second-hand Carlos'), with his wife Carla, a former escort ('Used Carla'). He waved and dangled his car keys at a couple beside me, who waved their own keys back. I asked them what it meant. The guy was Portuguese and said something about a 'geniality group'...

"Oh, you mean genealogy? I'd like to explore that myself", I said, trying to sound interested (Pah! Some bunch of geeks researching their ancestry – boring!).

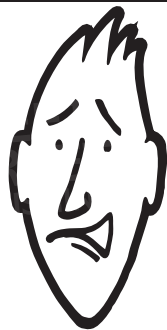

"Then come to our party!" he exclaimed, "And bring your friend", nodding at Galina, who grinned. I had the distinct feeling something was being lost in translation... But hey, a party's a party...

We split the Trousers (as you do) and drove to a country villa. Strange coincidence - it was Quinta do Prazer where I did the air-con service last week. The hostess asked us to put our car keys in a bowl with everyone else's, and handed me a guest card. It read: Geniality – The Pleasures of Sharing, with the silhouette of a kissing couple. Then I realised – OMG! A swingers' party! In the lounge were several fondling couples, including, in a corner – nooooo! - mum and dad! And they weren't fondling each other...!

I almost threw up, grabbed my car keys and bolted. I went to The Watering Hole for a stiff drink. Some of the guys from Penguin were there, but they didn't see me so it wasn't awkward – that is, until things got a lot worse...

Don't get an airhead, get an expert!
