

Airhead!

The diary of an incompetent air-con apprentice...

MONDAY

"Right, son – the honeymoon's over!", dad said at the weekend. "It's six months since you started work at Al-Cool... If you're living at home, it's time you started contributing some of your income to help out."

Whaaaaat? That's just soooo not fair! After all, I didn't ask to be born - my parents wanted me, so they should pay for me, right? Besides, how am I supposed to buy games and music and stuff if I have to give up half my wages for food and bills? So I told dad I could get Al-Cool to install a home solar system at cost-price, and it'd save on energy bills. I'll speak to Max about it tomorrow.

TUESDAY

"You offered your dad WHAT?!" Max shouted this morning. "Will you compensate me for the lost profit?"
"Well, no - I thought it'd be, like, a perk of the job...?"
"Oh it's a perk you want is it? 'Er, have the shirt off my effin' back, why don't you? Did you offer him free installation too?"
"Well, yes, I thought..."
"OK - done"
"Er... what? Really?"
"Sure, no problem – you bloody install it!"
"But I don't know how."
"That's your problem!"

WEDNESDAY

The system was delivered to our house today. Dad said he's already sorted an installer but he wouldn't say who... weird, I wonder why?

THURSDAY

OMG! Dad's got Penguin to do the installation. Max was furious: "Did I hear you right? We let him have the system at cost, and now our competitor is installing it?"
"Er, yes, but Max, it wasn't my -"
"Don't give me that! Tell you what – how'd you like the chance to make a real contribution to the business this month?"
"Sure – how?"
"Simple – I'm taking the lost installation fee from your wages."

FRIDAY

"Your mum and I appreciate you taking some financial responsibility towards the house", dad said today.
"Sure dad, no problem"
"So I told Penguin to invoice you for the installation - thanks, son."

Don't get an airhead, get an expert!
